Course objectives and goals

What is the difference between art and nature? Between reality and fiction? Intelligence and Artificial Intelligence? Exploring the different uses of the Greek term thauma (“wonder” but also “puppet, automaton”), we will jointly consider illusionist artworks that seem alive when described poetically and actual automata that were built in Hellenistic and Roman times. We will read translations of Ancient Greek and Latin authors such as Homer, Hesiod, Ovid and Propertius (no knowledge of Ancient Greek or Latin is required) and trace the evolution of these themes into modern and contemporary literature, artworks and artefacts (e.g. E.T.A. Hoffman, Oscar Wilde, Philip K. Dick; literature, opera, dance, painting, sculpture, robotics).

Through this course you will develop your close-reading skills, your capacity to analyze artworks and to theorize art and technology in order to prepare you for further studies in Ancient Greek and Latin Civilization, Art, and Comparative Literature.

Texts

- Oscar Wilde, The Picture of Dorian Gray, Penguin Classics, 2003, paperback, ISBN-13: 978-0141439570 [required]

Course requirements and grades

Students will be expected to participate actively in class discussions. In this regard, it is necessary to read and analyze in depth the assigned texts prior to come to class. In order to foster good participation, cell phone use is prohibited during class, and eating or drinking should be kept at a minimum.

Your grades will be based on 6 quizzes (including basic definitions and short essays; your lowest quiz grade will be dropped) and a Final Exam. There will also be a Creative Project in two parts: 1. just as ancient epigrammatists wrote short poems about existing works of art, you will write a short creative text about an ancient artwork of your choice. 2. The resulting texts will then be exchanged among the students so that each student creates an artwork inspired by a classmate's text. For instance, if student A writes a poem about the Venus of Milo and student B writes a poetic dialogue on the Winged Victory of Samothrace, student A can then create a collage inspired by student B's dialogue and student B a short film inspired by student A's poem. Possible art forms include drawing, painting, collage, sculpture, photography, music, short film, 3D printing, etc. Part 1's first draft will be due by Feb. 26 and the final version by Mar. 13, Part 2's first draft or equivalent will be due by Apr. 6 and its final version by Apr. 20, so we can create a short book and exhibit for our last class on Apr. 22.

- 6 quizzes = 30 %
- Homework, attendance and participation = 15%
- Creative project 1 = 15 %
- Creative project 2 = 15 %
- Final exam = 25 %

Class attendance and make-up works

Students are expected to attend class regularly. Make-up examinations are rarely given and only for extraordinary circumstances beyond your control, such as a grave illness. You must notify me in advance if possible and at the latest within 24 hours of a missed exam in order to arrange a makeup. I must have written documentation for any medical or other emergencies which result in a missed test.

Regular attendance and active participation are mandatory.

More than one absence will cause your final grade to be penalized by five points for each subsequent unexcused absence.

Arriving late or leaving early will count as 1/3 of an absence.

ADA requirements

Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should first register with the Disability Resource Center (352-392-8565, www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, students will receive an accommodation letter which must be presented to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.
