COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course explores the dynamic linguistic and cultural diversity of the ancient Greco-Roman world, examining how language, identity, and cultural exchange shaped societies across the Mediterranean. Through the lenses of immigration, imperialism, colonialism, and cultural integration, students will analyze the coexistence of multiple languages and cultures within the vast Greco-Roman empires.

Key topics include:

- The role of language diversity in shaping communication, governance, and identity.
- The impact of colonial expansion and imperial policies on indigenous languages and cultures.
- Immigration and diaspora communities and their cultural and linguistic contributions.
- Interactions between dominant cultures and local traditions, with a focus on power dynamics.
- The long-term implications of these processes and their modern global intersections, such as cultural assimilation, linguistic imperialism, and the preservation of minority identities.

Students will engage with primary texts (e.g., inscriptions, literary works, historical records) and secondary scholarship, employing interdisciplinary approaches to understand the complexities of ancient multicultural societies and their relevance to our understanding of the modern world. By the end of the course, students will develop critical perspectives on the ways in which ancient challenges to cultural and linguistic diversity continue to resonate in contemporary global contexts.

TEXTBOOKS

No textbook is required for this course.

All material will be available through CANVAS, open-access publications, and digital content available through UF Libraries.

PREREQUISITE KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS

ENC 1101 or sophomore standing

PURPOSE OF THE COURSE

The purpose of this course is to provide students with a deeper understanding of the multilingual and multicultural dynamics of the ancient Greco-Roman world. By examining themes such as language diversity, cultural exchange, immigration, imperialism, and colonialism, the course highlights the complexities of identity and societal integration in antiquity. Students will explore how these historical phenomena shaped communication, governance, and cultural development, while drawing critical connections to modern global issues of diversity, displacement, and cultural dominance.

Through engagement with primary sources, interdisciplinary scholarship, and discussions on contemporary parallels, students will gain the tools to critically analyze the ancient world and its ongoing relevance. The course ultimately aims to foster intellectual curiosity about multicultural interactions and to provide a nuanced perspective on the enduring impacts of cultural and linguistic diversity.

COURSE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

By the end of this course, students will be able to:

- Analyze the relationship between language, identity, and power in ancient societies.
- Evaluate the effects of imperialism and colonization on linguistic and cultural practices.
- Draw connections between ancient multiculturalism and modern global issues.
- Engage with interdisciplinary methodologies to assess historical evidence critically.
- Articulate insights on the diversity of the Greco-Roman world through written and oral analysis.

COURSE SCHEDULE AND ASSIGNMENTS

Daily preparation of the assigned material is required and necessary.

COURSE POLICIES

ATTENDANCE / PARTICIPATION

Students are expected to attend class and participate in class discussions and projects and complete peer reviews of projects throughout the semester. Students can have up to 3 unexcused absences throughout the semester. Beyond that, they will be deducted 0.5 point for every unexcused absence from class.

MAKE-UP POLICY

There will be no make-up work except in extraordinary and documented cases.

Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to the Instructor when requesting accommodation.

Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments, and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found at:

<https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx>

COURSE COMMUNICATIONS

Students can communicate directly with the Instructor regarding the course material through the course management system (CANVAS), via e-mail, or during office hours.

UF POLICIES

UNIVERSITY HONESTY POLICY

UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge that states, “We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code. On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.” The Honor Code (<https://sccr.dso.ufl.edu/policies/student-honor-code-student-conduct-code/>) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Furthermore, you are obligated to report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel. If you have any questions or concerns, please consult with the instructor or TAs in this class.

CLASS DEMEANOR

Students are expected to arrive to class on time and behave in a manner that is respectful to the instructor and to fellow students. Please, avoid the use of cell phones.

STUDENTS REQUIRING ACCOMMODATIONS

Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should first register with the Disability Resource Center (352-392-8565, www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, students will receive an accommodation letter, which must be presented to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.

ONLINE COURSE EVALUATIONS

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing online evaluations at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu>. Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester, but students will be given specific times when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu/results/>.
