Course Description and Objectives:

In this course, you will be exposed to a selected variety of methodological, theoretical, and practical issues currently important in Classical Studies and you will be able to acquaint yourself with the field's history, tools and resources, and main methods of research. The discipline was affected, admittedly a little late, by the wave of intellectual trends and new theoretical paradigms that emerged in the mid- to late twentieth century and, more recently, has benefited immensely from the rapid development of computer applications and online resources. In the course of this semester, the instructor (and some guest lecturers) will cover subjects as time-honored as the textual criticism of ancient authors and as up-to-date and practical as how to write an abstract or grant proposal or how to find what you are searching for in print and electronic databases.

Recommended and Required Textbooks:

1. * Reynolds, L. D., and N. G. Wilson. 1991. Scribes and Scholars: A Guide to the Transmission of Classical Texts. Oxford.
2. Garland, Robert. 2004. Surviving Greek Tragedy. London: Duckworth.
2. Additional assigned readings. Photocopies of articles will be placed in the class binder for reference.

Attendance, Policies, and Accommodations for Students with Disabilities:

Attendance at all lectures is expected. More than one unexcused absence will result in a lower grade. Attendance at departmental and other pre-announced workshops and lecture is also required (up to 80% compliance).

Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments, and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found in the online catalog at:

<https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx> .

You are required to do your own work at all times and to abide by the university's Honor Pledge:

<http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/process/student-conduct-honor-code/> .

Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to the Instructor when requesting accommodation.

Evaluation Methods:

You will be assigned several take-home exercises and one midterm exam (in class, Tu. Oct. 29) as well as a semester project resulting in a 15-min. presentation and a semester paper based on this presentation. The semester project will require you to submit, in various steps, a brief abstract (max. 400 words), an outline and preliminary, up-to-date list of works cited, and then a longer abstract (max. 800 words, including a brief paragraph describing your methodological approach). The use of illustrations is encouraged (more guidelines on papers, handouts, and powerpoint presentations will follow). All class presentations are scheduled to take place during the last session of the semester (Tu. Dec. 3).

Take-homes exercises (CV, abstracts, etc.):	40%
Midterm:	30%
Semester project:

presentation (15 min.)	15%
paper (10 p. text + 1-p. Works Cited + 1-p. illustrations with captions)	15%
TOTAL	100%

On the current UF grading policies, see further the undergraduate catalog web page:

<https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/grades.aspx> .

Online Course Evaluation Process:

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course based on 10 criteria. These evaluations are conducted online at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu> . Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester, but students will be given specific times when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu/results> .
